The Parish Spotlight ~ Remembering Kendrick Castillo—School Shooting Hero

When 18-year-old Kendrick Castillo was shot to death as he lunged at a gunman to protect his fellow classmates, he was just three days shy of graduating from STEM School Highlands Ranch. His heroic split-second decision made for a weightier advancement, Bishop Jorge Rodriguez, auxiliary bishop of Denver, said at the teen's private funeral Mass, May 17 at St. Mary Church in Littleton, Colorado.

"Kendrick graduated not with an academic degree, but he graduated in humanity and Christian life," Bishop Rodriguez said in his homily. "Heaven, brothers and sisters, is the true graduation." Calling Kendrick "a holy young man" and "a good disciple of Jesus Christ," the bishop celebrated the Mass with five other clergy, including St. Mary's pastor, Father Javier Nieva. In his homily, the bishop said, "Kendrick gave everything he is and everything he had — family, a future, a degree, his life — so other young men and women could go back to their families, have a future, graduate and live. Only a young man with God in his heart and possessing a big, good heart can do what he did: to lay down his life to save his friends."

Born to John and Maria Castillo on March 14, 2001, in Denver, Kendrick was an only child. He liked that he was born on Albert Einstein's birthday — and that the date is also known as Pi Day (in honor of the mathematical constant), which is often marked by eating pie. His father, John said, "He would make my wife aware of that so he could get a piece of pie, he was kind of a nerd that way. I loved that about him."

Kendrick had an ever-present grin, enjoyed taking his Jeep four-wheeling, relished fishing and hunting with his dad and watching movies with his mom, liked working on automobiles and computers, was keen on robotics, had a soft spot for the elderly and a deep sense of patriotism, and welcomed serving others at church and school.

"Patriotism, faith, his love for humanity — that was Kendrick," said his father.

Along with John Castillo, a Catholic priest, two Protestant ministers, friends and teachers eulogized Kendrick at a May 15 memorial service that drew 3,000 people to Cherry Hills Community Church in Highlands Ranch. The service was heralded by several reminders of Kendrick's love for life. More than 80 men, decorated in red, purple and green regalia, gathered in front of St. Mary Catholic Parish in Littleton. The Knights of Columbus traveled from across Colorado to honor Kendrick Castillo, a young man who aspired to be one of their own. Kendrick donated over 2,600 volunteer hours to the Knights of Columbus while attending meetings and events with his father.

Kendrick had his faith as his foundation. He used his God-given talents to do good. He was service-minded, and he treated others with love and respect. Truly, he was the epitome of a young Christian man.
