

The Work of the People

The Seventeenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

On this Seventeenth Sunday in Ordinary Time, we continue our journey through the summer months and through the ministry of Jesus, a ministry and a life to which we hear him call us in the scripture of these weeks.

The first reading for this Sunday is from the first Book of Kings. When God offers to give Solomon whatever he might ask for, the young king does not hesitate: he asks for an understanding heart. We can sense how daunted he is by his task as he contrasts his own youthfulness and inexperience, and the overwhelming numbers and needs of the people over whom he has been placed. God grants his request and makes it clear that this is the best gift Solomon could have asked for.

"All things work for good for those who love God" (Romans 8:28). Paul is not simply being optimistic or ignoring the challenges of life – he certainly experienced his share of those. Rather, he is expressing his profound faith that we are all in God's hands, not only now but from the beginning of time and to the end of time. God's protection and his call are with us even before we are aware of them.

In the Gospel today, Jesus continues to speak about the Kingdom in parables. The Kingdom is incredibly precious – a treasure, a pearl – and if we wish to attain it, we must sacrifice a great deal – perhaps even sell all we have. The parable of the net thrown into the sea, like the parable of the weeds and the wheat we heard last week, reminds us that the kingdom is a messy business. Only at the end of the ages will the good and wicked be separated from each other; until then, everyone is mixed up together. We must resist the temptation to sort ourselves out, to "throw away" some while retaining others. That task is reserved for the end of the age, the fulfillment of the Kingdom of God.

The reflection for this week is from Kathy Coffey who is an award-winning writer, mother of four, and speaker who gives workshops and retreats nationally and internationally. Her most recent book is When the Saints Came Marching In.

What is the pearl of great price, the treasure in the field, the fish worth keeping? We all know the right answer: God. To get at the real answer, we might ask ourselves, "What's most important? What do I want so badly it aches?"

The parent might respond with the name of a child, the lover thinks of the beloved, the artist or craftsperson of the next project, the businessperson of a promotion, the naturalist of stream and meadow.

Here's the catch: what if the right answer and the real answer are one and the same? Isn't God big enough to encompass it all? If our loves and longings spring from the deepest, best self, then they are part and parcel of the God-spark, Christ within.

The God-planted joy in it all gives permanence. So if the beloved dies, the children eventually leave home, the career derails, the meadow becomes a parking lot, or the project ends, something vital remains. Through the enduring happiness, memory, or sense of completion, God leaves a lasting mark.

Jesus' genius is communicating these subtle, hard-to-define truths in symbols, not laws or abstractions. The symbol is elastic enough to hold polarities and concrete enough for the youngest to grasp, at least a bit. It sounds like a riddle: what do pearls, fields, and fish have in common? They all get us thinking, questioning, reaching for God whose hidden presence hovers tantalizingly close. Without God, we have nothing. Having God, we have everything. Maybe we're never without.

A FAMILY PERSPECTIVE

The man in today's gospel "sold all he had" for the treasure he found. Family relationships are "treasures" and demand our total personal investment. Invest yourself in the "treasure" of your family.

A MARRIAGE MOMENT

Solomon asked the Lord for an "understanding heart" (1 Kings 3:9) not a long life or riches. Marriage comes with plenty of occasions to complain and be irritated. Think of one criticism you have of your beloved. Imagine how an understanding heart would handle that criticism.

SAMUEL GROUP
A NEW INITIATIVE FOR YOUR ADULTS
DISCERNING ANY VOCATION
 Just because everyone else seems to think you are prepared for life as an adult doesn't mean you aren't wrestling with the big questions. The Vocations Office and the Office of Youth and Young Adult Ministry are collaborating on a new initiative called Samuel Group. Are you contemplating marriage? Wondering if you are being called to the priesthood or religious life? Samuel Group may be just what you need. Young adults ages 20 - 30 are encouraged to participate in a seven-month journey that includes monthly gatherings at St. Mark Catholic Center, spiritual direction, prayer, talks, small group discussion and accompaniment. The goal is for each participant to grow in self-knowledge and to hear and respond to God's call with an open heart. Please visit www.eriescd.org/youth/samuelgroup.html for an information video, directions on how to apply and a downloadable flier.
