QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Suggested text for faith sharing: Today's Gospel

Adults – Christ continues to feed us as His disciples, even after His death and resurrection. How does the Eucharist feed your faith?

Youth – Jesus asked Peter three times to “feed My sheep.”

Who are you being called to help in your life right now?

Children – Jesus asks Peter three times if Peter loves Jesus.

What one thing can you do this week to show Jesus your love?

WHOLE COMMUNITY CATECHESIS

THANK YOU

Today is our last day for Faith Formation classes at both Saint Hippolyte and Our Lady of Lourdes until September. We thank our catechists who have given so much of their time for preparing and teaching our young people. The regular catechists in our parish Faith Formation Program are: Chris Bornemann, Mary Everett, Jen Gordon, Amy Mercier, Kevin Merritt, David Paul, Gabrielle Pierce, Chris Ploski, Chris Rynd, Leighann Steck, April Terrill and Kathy Young. Our substitute catechists are: Brian Burnette, Debbie Furry, Regina Merritt, Shannon Ploski, Allison Polley and Teresa Yarnell. If you see any of these wonderful people give them a big THANK YOU.

These catechists in our Faith Formation program have been successful because of the parents who bring their children on a regular basis to continue their Faith Formation. Thank you to these parents for their commitment to raising their children in the faith, which they promised to do at their child's Baptism.

If you are interested in joining our team of catechists for the 2019-2020 school year, please call our parish Faith Formation Coordinator, Joyce Tarr, at 814-671-1009.

CONGRATULATIONS to Stephen Schwartz who received Holy Communion for the first time today during the 8:30am Mass.

The Communion Procession

The Communion Procession is perhaps the most challenging ritual in our current liturgy. The reasons are complex. In general, it may be that we often choose a personal rather than a communal approach when considering the Communion Procession. In the Eucharistic Prayer that precedes the Communion Rite, we pray with the priest as he calls on the Holy Spirit to transform the bread and wine into Christ's body and blood. After the consecration, we join him in his prayer that the Holy Spirit make us all one. In the Communion Procession, we live out the hope of our prayers by moving and singing together as a united people. In this procession, we become a physical sign of the Body of Christ.

The Communion Rite begins with the Lord's Prayer and continues until the Prayer After Communion is prayed. During that time, the community processes and sings together as it moves forward to receive communion. According to the General Instruction to the Roman Missal (GIRM) and the Missal itself, the song begins as the priest receives, signaling that he too is a member of the community, and concludes when all have received. Then, the priest and the faithful may spend time in quiet reflection. To close the Communion Rite, the priest prays the Prayer After Communion.

This ritual has some interlopers, however. They distort and change its meaning and purpose as set out in the GIRM. One grievous result is the loss of a time for quiet thanksgiving by the community. While some individuals pray immediately after receiving, this is not what the missal calls for. This personal act, while allowed, breaks down the communal sign of singing together and then praying together. Ideally, the assembly sits or kneels to give thanks after the last person receives. The conclusion of the Communion Song might well signal this change in posture for the assembly.

Having the community continue to stand and watch as the vessels are emptied and the hosts are returned to the tabernacle delays their time for personal prayer. The public cleansing of vessels adds to this delay. None of these are liturgical actions that require the notice or participation of the assembly.

There are solutions. First, presiders may simply make sure that whatever happens during the rite, there is always ample time for quiet prayer after communion for the entire community. Second, vessels may be purified after Mass or at least out of sight at the credence table as the GIRM allows. Meanwhile, the community may kneel or sit to pray. Third, any remaining hosts may be returned to the tabernacle without the assembly's attention. Having received the Body of Christ within themselves, the community need not stand in veneration of the reserved sacrament. This practice may stem from experiences at Exposition and Benediction but it is out of place and distracting at Mass. Fourth, the GIRM encourages the reception of hosts consecrated at the Mass attended by the faithful, thus making the use of the tabernacle unnecessary in most cases.

Implementing these four solutions would bring our celebrations closer to what the Roman Missal envisions. Changing our practice need not be difficult. Communion ministers might assess the number of needed hosts before Mass and consume any remaining hosts or consecrated wine afterward. Presiders and deacons might consider less public ways of cleansing the vessels. All of us might strive to sing and give thanks together as one body, the Body of Christ.

St. Augustine said that in the Eucharist we receive what we are, and we become what we receive: "Be a member of the Body of Christ so that your Amen may be true." By making the principle of full, conscious and active participation a priority, as the liturgy documents ask, we may find ways to make the Communion Procession both more prayerful and more engaging.
