Fr. Ben Daghir's Corner

Here is his advice: share unconditional love, make your love unmistakable, ask for and express forgiveness, take an interest in the person's hobbies, and cultivate hospitality.

I would like to focus on just one of these seeds: take an interest in the person's hobbies.

Authentic sharing of faith (evangelization) never imposes but rather proposes. One of the smartest, most effective approaches we can take with a fallen-away Catholic is to talk on their turf (whether that be sports, cars, politics, outdoors, music, or whatever).

This becomes the starting ground and the area by which a connection can naturally happen. It's crucial. Then, more important topics can emerge. For example, nature always leads to beauty, order, silence, peace, etc. Those are all avenues in which we can talk about the much more important things in life. Quite similarly, politics leads to discussions about justice, equality, morals, etc. Those are also all avenues in which we can talk about much more important topics.

One can see that hobbies can naturally lead into more profound discussions and questions about life. Hobbies are an excellent starting point. In fact, I find it a lot more effective than, "Hey, haven't talked to you in a while. What are your thoughts on Jesus Christ as your Lord and Savior?" Mind you, St. Paul utilized the approach of starting first on the other person's turf. In the Acts of the Apostles (17:16-34) Paul visits Athens, the center of Greek thought. He engages the people first with their Greek understanding, that of philosophy. Then, he works his way to Jesus Christ through various steps. He met those people where they were and then oriented the discussion to something much deeper as the discussion continued.

To put this in example form: I would allow for a Pirate game to be an avenue in which faith can emerge, I would allow for a fishing story to be another opportunity to lead to something more, I would allow for the design of the Mustang to be another option, I would allow for the latest song on the radio to be another path.

Maybe it's time for some of us to reconsider our first step. Maybe we need to first step into the shoes of the other person and start from there. St. Paul did and he is the greatest evangelist in Church history.

Fr. Ben Daghir
